New possibilities and new challenges

Expected Outcomes

- An appreciation of how a learning platform might be used to support the work of the participant's school.
- Generating ideas and policies dealing with practical issues in the initial planning stages.

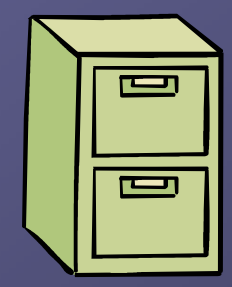

DfES e-strategy

- Our second priority extends this personalised support also to learners, helping with all stages of education, and with progression to the next stage. We will encourage every institution to offer a personal online learning space to store coursework, course resources, results, and achievements. We will work towards developing a personal identifier for each learner...
- Together, these facilities will become an electronic portfolio, making it simpler for learners to build their record of achievement throughout their lifelong learning.

What type of communities would you like to see in your schools?

- Whole school, year groups, classes or clusters?
- Would you allow groups to be managed by pupils?
- Which staff would you approach to lead this forward?
- How could a community help to provide a quality learning experience?

From teaching to finance

The screenshot shows a forum post on the SWGfL website. The post is titled "Bullying" and contains several paragraphs of text. The text discusses the possibility of bullying in schools and mentions a survey conducted by Year 6 pupils. The post includes a search bar and navigation links like "Reply", "Edit", and "Delete".

Bullying

Unfortunately there will always be the possibility of bullying wherever there are people. Could Year 6 pupils express their concerns and Year 7 pupils explain what would happen in their school?

The teachers are quite anxious when you get to the school and they look after you and make sure that everybody is settling in!

Challenges

- Who watches over the personalised learning space?
- Do our AUPs cover the new technology?
- How do we deal with the digital divide within our school communities?
- How would we include parents?
- How exactly would we set up and manage e-portfolios?
